

Book: Nude with Attitude

Like a duck to water. Kay Hannam, one of New Zealand's best known naturists, describes her first visit to the Canterbury Sun Club now known as Pineglades Nourist Club in 1984.

Immersing herself into Club life, Kay enjoyed the camaraderie of naturist friends from all around New Zealand, participating in national rallies on an annual basis, even enjoying some success on the miniten court. Becoming involved in committee work as Secretary, soon led her to a role as Club President. Coordinating the Mardi Gras Rally at Pineglades in 1995, hosting over 300 naturists certainly tested her organisational ability.

As Pineglades delegate for a number of years, Kay soon found herself elected to the national executive, firstly as Trophy Secretary, then South Island Vice President. During her four year term as National President, Kay also attended the INF World Congress in Sweden and Germany as NZNF Delegate. She later acted as NZNF Delegate at INF World Congresses held in Croatia and Spain.

Kay's vision of 'creating the place to be' materialised when partner Brian Williams found the ideal location in Lake Tekapo. Aoraki Naturally soon became known world-wide as the pair promoted themselves and their clothes-free lifestyle through various media, and by developing their own informative website.

The Mackenzie Muster Naturist Festival which encompassed the first international golf tournament to be held on a regular golf course became the most talked about event in New Zealand naturist circles. Relocating their business to Marlborough in 2006, Kay and Brian developed Wai-natur Naturist Park; a safe and secure haven for naturists with all the amenities of a regular camping ground.

Travelling throughout Europe during the past fourteen years resulted in a range of experiences many of which have been related by Kay in gonatural magazine. Appointed editor in 2007, she is now Managing Editor of the quarterly magazine published by NZNF, and continues to promote Naturism world wide.

Kay has compiled a frank account of her passion for a clothes-free lifestyle in this book. Ten years since the concept was mooted, the memoir now available. You can order it directly from Kay at:

Naturism in the midst of Life

The Naturists present themselves at the Travel and Camping Fair at Essen, Germany

How can someone say, that the naturist movement is neither varied nor international? The recent Travel and Camping Fair, which took place from 27th February till 3rd March at Essen, Germany, speaks a different language. Because the naturist movement participated at one of the largest leisure fairs in the German-speaking area in a very colourful and vivid way. Be it young or old, national or international, the width of the naturist movement could be felt all-over during the fair at Essen. The President of the International Naturist Federation (INF), Sieglinde Ivo, was picking up dialogues with interested men and women, as did Kurt Fischer, the President of the DFK, the German Naturist Association. The Federal President of the German Naturist Youth, Andreas Fischer, handing out leaflets, as well as Nicole Wunram, the pioneer of Nude Hiking, mingled with and talked to the numerous visitors.

All of them summed up a positive conclusion of the five days at the fair stand at Essen. Günther Hedderich, the President of the Family-Sport-Association of North Rhine-Westphalia, gave an enthusiastic comment: „Contrary to all expectations we have met a lot of young families. This confirms that naturism does have a future and will see a positive development within the society.“ The INF-President Sieglinde Ivo, added that this energy will only grow by a fruitful cooperation, which acts beyond any national border and focus on contents. She esteems that networks are being maintained everywhere during the fairs, so to give a fresh impetus at the base, again and again. In this context she fully agrees with the President of the German Naturist Youth, Andreas Fischer, that young faces and young families are the guarantees to ensure a fresh and lively movement. The DFK President Kurt Fischer, however, has a slightly different view. He has the impression that the attraction of such fairs rather decreases. All the more it is important that the naturists are present, too.

Nicole Wunram, who for some time makes a name for a highly noteworthy book about nude hiking, was very glad that her entrance at the Travel and Camping Fair at Essen met such a high attention. By the settings of a leisure fair it has been a lot easier for the people to leave behind all fears, but to find enthusiasm for a new idea.

Obviously the Travel and Camping Fair itself, too, managed to achieve this result, as the Fair company informed: „More than 90000 visitors started their most beautiful weeks. During the largest Travel- and the only Caravan Spring Fair in North Rhine-Westphalia, 1098 exhibitors from 43 nations presented a unique world of holidays by large possibilities of information and purchases.“

Naturist Orientation for Holidays and Everyday Life

The standard manual for naturism has been published again.

Anyone who plans to spend naturist holidays will have no choice but to consult the „European Naturist Guide“, published by the Editor „Drei-Brunnen“, in cooperation with the DFK, the German Naturist Federation. Indeed, the manual with 320 pages not only presents the site details of the countless European associations, but also gives an excellent basis to prepare and organize naturist holidays. Of course the commercial holiday centres are shown, too. But this „European Naturist Guide“ is also helpful for the everyday life, because it also lists smaller beaches on rivers and lakes, where exclusively naturist minded people come together or where naturism is tolerated.

„Enjoying one’s holidays without clothes continuously remains popular“, Kurt Fischer, the President of the German Naturist federation (DFK) writes in his foreword. When leafing through the 320 pages of the „European Naturist Guide“ you will find out why. Therefore this guide should find its place inside each leisure bag or travel case of any naturist minded person. Whoever will take up the hints of the guide surely will enjoy living nude.

Another pleasure are the pictures of the naturist life, which the Editor „Drei-Brunnen“ has chosen for this year’s guide, be it the daily appealing young Austrian ladies pictured in their Eva-like suit on the beautiful beaches, or the naturist couple Nicole Wunram and Markus Gründel. These pictures simply show naturism as it is – in full simplicity and sympathy. One can feel the naturalness on the camping site, as well as the wellbeing on the naturist beach.

When the „free naturist beaches“ are mentioned in short review articles, for example in Austria, Switzerland and Denmark, you will not only get first tips for attractive opportunity destinations. Already during chilly days you get a kind of mental cinema, increasing the excitement, when you finally will be able to enjoy naturism during this year.

What could be good for the „European Naturist Guide“, would be a short substantive impetus, perhaps encouraging one or other user respectively reader to buy again and again its most recent issue. Some naturists might like to see the changes of naturism in the individual countries through review articles, for example the efforts by some persons responsible for tourism to repress naturism in Croatia. Maybe one or other naturist would be pleased to read about general considerations as to naturism in the „European Naturist Guide“. Naturism and travelling – this pair is to be fostered.

FKK-Reiseführer Europa 2013: The best Sites, the most beautiful Beaches. Drei – Brunnen – Editor, Plüderhausen 2013, ISBN 978-3795603267, 320 pages, 10 Euro.
